

HAYWOOD PARTY OFF FOR DENVER

Accompanied by John H. Murphy, Who Has Gained Strength.

QUIET DAY IN THIS CITY

BIG DEMONSTRATION AWAITS HOMECOMING IN DENVER.

William D. Haywood left Salt Lake for Denver last night, after a quiet twenty-four hours passed in a visit with relatives here. He took the Rio Grande No. 4, which left Salt Lake last night at 7:30 o'clock, and will arrive in Denver this evening, a day later than he had anticipated. The demonstration which had been planned for last evening was postponed until tomorrow, but a rousing informal reception will be given him by the laboring men who will meet him at the station and escort him to his old home.

Accompanying Mr. Haywood on his triumphant journey to Colorado are Mr. Murphy, his dying attorney, and Mr. Haywood's wife and family. Mr. Murphy was in a critical condition when the party arrived in Salt Lake late Friday evening and remained in the Holy Cross hospital during his stay here. A wire was received yesterday from Mrs. Murphy saying that she had left Denver yesterday morning on her way to Salt Lake, and instructing Dr. Briabow, his physician, not to attempt to take the sick man on to Denver.

Murphy is Stronger.
Mr. Murphy's condition was so much improved yesterday, however, that his physician decided that he could stand the trip on to his home. Mrs. Murphy was stopped by wire at Glenwood Springs, where she will join the Haywood party and return to Denver with her husband.

At the station last evening there was a large gathering of people to see Mr. Haywood off. He was accompanied to the depot by Mr. Haywood and to bid him farewell. Mrs. Haywood was carried from her cab into the drawing room of the Pullman by her husband and returned to Denver with her husband.

Stream of Visitors.
At the residence of James Killean, 247 West Fifth North street, where Mr. Haywood stopped while in Salt Lake, there was a steady stream of visitors all day long. Some of the visitors were his youth in Salt Lake, and in other places where he lived prior to his arrest; others were friends who came partly because of curiosity and partly because they wanted to show their allegiance to the labor cause.

The day was passed as quietly as possible, the labor leader endeavoring to get a little rest after the trying months at Boise, and to visit his relatives. Dozens of telegrams were received from Denver and cities on the itinerary asking for information as to when Haywood would leave Salt Lake. A number of telegrams were received from Secretary Kilwan of the Western Federation of Miners wired to know when train Haywood will leave Salt Lake. A number of telegrams were received from the district court at Colorado Springs and go to Denver with Mr. Haywood.

Both Arrive Tonight.
Charles H. Moyer, the president of the Western Federation of Miners, who was released on $25,000 bond yesterday morning, and will arrive in Denver this evening at about the same time that Haywood will arrive there.

The demonstration in Denver had been planned particularly for Haywood, and Moyer had delayed his departure from Boise so that he would arrive after Haywood had been received. Haywood missed connections at Ogden on Friday, however, and as a result they will both reach Denver this evening.

The board of education will have a meeting next Tuesday evening, at which time it is expected that some definite arrangements will be made about selling the $20,000 worth of bonds voted for last April. The meeting is the regular monthly gathering of the board.

The Certificate Plan.
Many people do not wish to open either an account subject to check or a regular savings account, as they are desirous of having their money earn interest from the day deposited until withdrawn. Our Secured Certificates fully meet these requirements and we want those interested to ask us about our plan and why we can safely afford to pay six per cent interest.

TERRIC STORM HITS SALT LAKE

Strong Wind Sweeps the City and Does Thousands of Dollars Damage.

WATER HIGH ON THE LAKE

SPRAY FROM THE WAVES COVERS PAVILION FLOOR.

The heaviest storm of the summer visited Salt Lake yesterday afternoon and for two hours blew up and down the streets until it looked as though a young cyclone had crept into the valley. Dr. Hays had announced the arrival of the storm, determined not to be caught napping as he had been a week ago when a vagrant thunderstorm came in unannounced and remained for a short time. Yesterday's storm began in earnest about 2:30 and lasted until nearly 6 o'clock. The storm struck the Salt Palace as though it were a regulation Kansas cyclone and when it had passed over $1,000 damage had been done. The northern half of the dance hall roof was blown off and hurled into the beer garden. The wind also tore down the fence surrounding the saucer, track at the northeast corner of the track. No one was injured by the flying timber as the park was almost deserted at the time of the storm.

Limbs of trees were blown down all through the park until it was nearly impassable. The races were postponed last night on account of the storm and Manager Nelson estimated the damage at $1,000 or over.

The storm on the Great Salt Lake was one of the most severe that has occurred on the mysterious inland sea for years. The waves rolled over the main section of the Saltair establishment and some of the boats that ply the great lake sought shelter early and were at safe anchorage when the storm broke. Several vessels rocked and tossed much after the fashion of a craft in distress at sea. There being no one at sea, the boats were injured. Many scores of people watched the water in its madness, thrilled, alarmed and terrified by the spectacle.

FATE'S CHANCE HAS NEW MISFORTUNE

Frank Russell Recovering from Terrible Injury Deserted by Mother.

CAREER BRIEF BUT LIVELY

LAD FELL THREE STORIES AND ALIGHTED ON HIS HEAD.

Having escaped death by a miracle little Frank Russell is at the Latter-day Saints hospital well on his way toward recovery, but apparently forgotten or deserted by his mother. Day after day the boy, who is only 5 years old, has been making a brave fight for his life, but he has been without the comforting assistance of a mother's care. The nurses and physicians at the hospital, won by the cheerfulness of the little fellow, have done all in their power to make him happy, but during the past few days a long expression has taken the place of the bright smiles. Each morning the boy has watched the door of his room in the hospital and then another period of real comfort has been passed.

Was Apparently Dead.
About two months ago, while playing on the roof of a building on Commercial street, the boy plucked through the skylight to the floor of a court three stories below. When picked up he was to all appearances dead, but at the hospital a faint flicker of life was found after a close examination. Little or no hopes were held out for his recovery, however, when it was found that he had fallen on his head. Concussion of the brain, a fractured skull, internal injuries, all these were given as results of the accident, and the boy was treated in the hospital for some time.

Dr. W. F. Beer took the case in charge and to his astonishment the boy began to improve. Every effort was then made to assist the recovery. Several slight operations were had to relieve the strain on the boy's brain, and after each one he recuperated rapidly.

Mother Remains Away.
A few days after the injury the boy's mother called to see him. Two or three days later she called again, but at that time she has not appeared at the hospital. The police were asked to find her, but she has not been located. Her father is making arrangements to have the boy placed in some institution as soon as his recovery is completed.

Frank Russell seems to have been predestined for adventures and vicissitudes. During the past few weeks the boy has gained in a way that the physicians at the hospital could not understand. The injuries received in the fall, causing Dr. Beer, were sufficient to cause death in the most robust men, but the boy has recovered from the operations and is now almost ready to be discharged from the hospital.

Mother Fears Expense.
After he had been missing an unusually long time the police were asked to find him. After a long search the boy was found trotting about the streets with a cart, looking into the show windows and enjoying himself immensely. He seemed to think it strange that he was allowed to go about the city when and where he pleased.

CITY'S HANDS TIED SAYS MR. DINNIN

Can't Let Contract for Sidewalk Extension No. 108, Declares Attorney.

HIS OPINIONS CONFLICTING

MEANWHILE MORAN IS SOLVING PROBLEM IN HIS OWN WAY.

The city cannot let a contract for sidewalk extension No. 108 under the old law. Neither can it be done under the new law. This is the opinion of H. J. Dinnin, assistant city attorney, and it will be submitted to the board of public works Monday, when bids for this work are to be opened.

The trouble has all arisen out of the old contract tangle, and the city attorney's opinion is a direct reversal of his opinion rendered three months ago on the same subject. The opinion also has a deeper significance, as it means that the contract let to S. Birch recently for the construction of the unopened work of the Utah Fireproofing company on the north bench, and which the property owners paid for two years ago, cannot be awarded.

Started the Trouble.
The old contract law provided that the assessment should be made on the engineer's estimates before the work was started. When bids were first opened last March on extension No. 108 this law was in effect, but the mayor did not sign the contract until after the new law providing that the assessment should be made after the work is started.

The 108 contract was allowed to lapse at the time, although the old law had already been made. Recently it was ordered by the council that this work be advertised for again, and the general belief was that as the assessment had been made before the new law went into effect, that the old form of contract could be used. Now the city attorney says this cannot be done, although, when the matter came up at first, he said it could.

On the North Bench.
The same condition exists as to the work on the north bench. Scores of people have petitioned the council to be allowed to do this work themselves and have the assessment made, but the council always answers that the work will be started at once. Now it cannot be started this year, and the residents will have to wait at least ten months more before they can have the sidewalks they paid for in 1905.

Extension No. 108 includes the entire southeastern section of the city and involves the laying of approximately fifty miles of cement walks.

One of the peculiar features of the attorney's decision is the fact that since the new law went into effect P. J. Moran was awarded the contracts for paving West Temple and Brigham streets under the old contract form because the assessment had been made previously. The city attorney did not object to this, although the board of public works at the time wished to start a test suit to settle the matter.

Opinions are Conflicting.
If the attorney's opinion in reference to No. 108 is good law, then his former opinions have been bad law and the Moran contracts are void.

Moran is, however, going ahead with his work right valiantly, and will no doubt have it completed before the attorney, board of public works and the council can decide how to let a similar contract.

The contract tangle has been one of the most distressing features of the "reformers" attempts to reform. When it started the legislature was doing so maliciously trying to stop to public improvements in Salt Lake. The new law was branded by the "American" press as a menace to the welfare of the city. Now all well-formed "Americans" acknowledge that the law is a good one and that it will tend to cure many evil practices. But notwithstanding all this the council, attorney and board of public works are still figuring on how to do something that Moran is doing every day.

RESEARCH WORK IN MINING AND METALLURGY IS ENCOURAGED AMONG GRADUATE STUDENTS.

COLLEGE COAL BIN STORED

EASTERN PROFESSORS TOURING WEST STOP AT SALT LAKE.

Colonel E. A. Wall has just become the donor of a fellowship in mining at the state university. It is to be known as the "Colonel Wall Research Fellowship in Mining" and is to have an annual income of $500. The fellowship will be awarded each year to a graduate student of ability and attainment to enable him to do research work in mining and metallurgy.

In establishing the fellowship Colonel Wall's purpose is to encourage young men of technical skill to investigate the unsolved problems of mining and metallurgy. It is commonly asserted that these industries have profited less from scientific study than any of the other great interests of the United States. Colonel Wall's thought is that scientific laboratory experimentation may solve a good many practical problems for mining men.

Students at the state university will not go cold next winter even if the weather drops to zero and the coal cars stand on sidings outside the mines. The university has stuffed its coal bins to the ceiling and is now heaping a small mountain of the slack at the rear of the boiler house. Seven hundred tons will be stored, not quite enough, judging by the amount used last year to run the boilers through the winter. Four hundred tons have already been stored.

Two eastern professors have been in town during the week. One was Professor George of the department of psychology of the University of Chicago, who is compiling statistics with respect to western schools for the Chicago university press. He was formerly instructor in English in the University of Michigan and met some of his old Michigan students while in town.

The other visitor was Professor Scroder of Cornell university, who was en route home from a pleasure trip to the northwest. Professor Scroder is in charge of the famous hydraulic laboratory at Cornell. He was the guest here of a former classmate, Professor Lyman of the State University.

Because of the lively mainstem yesterday afternoon University day at Lagoons was not so big as it promised to be during the week. But a good many patrons of the university were at the resort, and the reunion was successful. There were probably more students present than graduates.

Professor George Thomas of the department of history and economics of the Agricultural college of Logan, is in the city making a study of the economics of the smelting and metallurgical industries of the state.

Secretary Allen of the board of regents of the state university left yesterday for three weeks or so in Provo canyon.

BABY GIRLS IN THE LEAD.

They Figure in 26 of the 41 Births Last Week.

The girls beat out the boys badly last week in the birth record, there being only fifteen arrivals of the male persuasion to twenty-six of the gentler sex. This discrepancy is unusual, as the birth records usually show from week to week nearly an equal number. During the previous week there were only thirty-seven births, and the week before there were forty-nine, the record for the year. Last week the stork brought forty-one.

To offset the births there were twenty-four deaths reported, fourteen being males and ten females.

Ten cases of contagious diseases were reported, consisting of four cases of smallpox, one of scarlet fever, three of diphtheria and two of measles. At the end of the week there remained in quarantine five cases of smallpox, five of scarlet fever and three of diphtheria.

TUESDAY IS CIRCUS DAY
Ringling Brothers' Five Special Trains Will Arrive in City at an Early Hour.

Early Tuesday morning the five special trains of Ringling Brothers' circus are scheduled to arrive here from Ogden. To make sidetrack room for the eighty-five cars composing the circus train has been a problem for the railroad officials, but everything has been arranged so that the unloading may be quickly made. As circus people are known as hustlers, it will not take long to transfer the several hundred head of stock, wild animal cages, parade vehicles and immense mechanical equipment to the show grounds at the city limits. The arrival of this circus is always greeted by throngs.

To many people, the wonderful system by which this big show is carried about the country and enabled to give daily performances promptly and satisfactorily is a sort of eight-day wonder and more of an attraction than the multitude of ring acts. It is a system that provides for each of the million articles that comprise the show "outfit," and every one of these articles must be in its place. No time can be lost at any time of the day or night, for the work is heavy and varied, and the places of exhibition wide apart, so that every man must know his duty and be quick in thought and action. It is a system that provides for the feeding of 1,300 people in a different town each day, with every article of food purchased in the town itself.

When a serious effort was made to cut out the circus parade, it was Ringling Brothers that said "No," and thereby earned the good wishes of every boy and girl in the land.

In the 100 numbers of the circus performance are concerned 375 performers, two-thirds of whom are making their first appearance in this country. Acrobats from Persia, riders from Italy, gymnasts from Germany and England, dancers and comedians from France, clowns from Spain, jugglers and balancers from Japan, and other specialists representing twenty-two countries of the world, are in this season's program. The ten Flying Jordans, three Clarklons, sixteen Merze-Golems, sixteen Kaufmanns, six Eorsinis, four Marullo-Marrits, Noetzel family, Patty brothers, Holloway family, Bedini family, Marguerite and Hanley, Arno brothers, Aerial Smiths and Emma Stickney, are among the leading attractions. The fun of the show is mainly provided by fifty clowns, who work in groups of three and four at intervals around the huge hippodrome track.
